

ON PARADISE (NOT INTERNAL, NOT EXTERNAL, NOT SUPERIOR)

Now we will speak of the Thusness of sentient beings. These are sentient beings who seek the cause of their creation, go beyond, “losing themselves in the Cause” and then rediscover themselves in the Creation; with the Cosmic consciousness, which is “without” any idea of the “I” or Self.

Such a condition is unseizable and inconceivable. It lies beyond the duality which can be conceived of by the emptiness of the sentient being and by the emptiness of the phenomena of the Creation (it's pleasant to use terms which have already been explained, its almost like using useful words! But it's pure illusion!). Sentient beings can only assign subjective, personal, unique and exclusively individual values to it. After an initial period of disorientation, seekers of spiritual realization, tending to the Universal value, position themselves like the needle of a compass, towards the Absolute Creator and...

Having said this, we must specify that the condition which is perceived (which is neither acquired or conquered) lies beyond the distinction of sentient being/seeker of spiritual realization, beyond any type of duality (a difficult feat to accomplish with the mind!), beyond any concept of evolution, growth, reduction or involution.

It is NOT possible to become either more pure or less pure. This condition is already in concert with the “inconceivable harmonic interaction” which seems like an amphora overflowing with marvellous qualities, even if nothing – NOTHING – is being poured into it. There are no signs of sensations, passions, heartfelt expressions, miraculous or mystical visions, as in this condition one is pervaded by the Wisdom of Non-Distinction, everything is impartial, because it is pervaded by the Beloved Absolute.

The “sentient being/seeker of spiritual realization,” operates in the causality which makes up and conditions events. It almost seems possible to define paradise, but in Reality it is not possible, because it is a condition... of the sum of the useless words which have been explained: Mind, Wisdom, Paradise within, Love, Skillful Means, Emptiness, Thusness, Non-Action, un-defined Paradise.

Will you be able to sum up all of this uselessness? Will this “USELESS” (inconsequential, hollow, vain) word be the same for everybody? Or will it be different for those who, in the law of cause-and-effect, see other things and, in the void, see still more? Who, in attributing a different value to words, can comprehend beyond and even further, furnishing words with definitive meanings?

This Paradise, which transcends the Void and Creation, eternity and infinitesimal time, Union and separation, that which exists and that which does not, lies beyond suffering (physical, sensations, mental, intellectual and of the Soul). How to render it “accessible” to the minds of sentient beings? WHAT ARE WE MADE OF?

- 1) Strings (closed, open), bordering with the “Quantum Mechanical Void” VIBRATIONS. How many dimensions are they connected with? $10+1$ (11).
- 2) Quanta or packets of energy, the smallest conception of observable-variable matter, with spins (the face they show) in interaction (entanglement) with those who have the same “face.”
- 3) Atoms that link and unlink bonds to other atoms in a continuous experimentation.
- 4) Cells... here we go from matter to consciousness.
- 5) Microtubules (study them), the phenomenon of consciousness or coherence of the connections in the brain, which is not the only seat of conscious thought, but also has, due to various interactions, beginning with quantistic interweaving, the most disparate centers located outside the sentient being. Therefore, one has a (relative) awareness of the material world, and awareness of what is not perceivable as matter (How Marvellous, the Perfect Absolute Architect!). These microtubules, carriers of a huge amount of information (from the quantum mechanical void), condition the metabolism of mitochondria which in turn condition the functionality of the neuronal cell. Yet... reaching the neuron with this system, if new connections and links are generated, in my opinion the “mitochondria” (in interaction with the microtubules) of the Universe are the sentient beings (of any kind or species). The THOUGHT changes, but... it changes, from the Preface of this text - the values in the mind – brain – or the entanglement (interaction in continuous movement which changes the values moment by moment).

Therefore:

- All things are available to sentient beings, it's a pity that this is not in their best interest.
- This availability is utilized, studied and assessed by seekers of spiritual realization.
- For those who live in the undefined Paradise, it is moment by moment. That does not mean that this “undefined” Paradise is the cessation of some state in form or of some produced phenomenon, because in Absolute Reality no one produces anything that does not already exist in the Absolute already .

How useless will these words be?
